FACULTY

KIMBERLY MUKERJEE, MD, MPH

New Orleans, Louisiana

Director, Immigrant and Refugee Health
Section of Community Pediatrics and Global Health
Tulane University

Dr. Mukerjee is a bilingual (Spanish / English) board certified pediatrician who works as an assistant professor of clinical medicine for the Tulane University Department of Pediatrics, Section of Community Pediatrics. She also serves as the section's Director of Immigrant and Refugee Health and as Medical Director of the New Orleans Children's Health Project.

She completed her training at the University of Washington where she also completed a masters degree in public health.

Dr. Mekerjee's clinical interests include improving systems of care for vulnerable and underserved children and reducing health disparities that disproportionately affect their populations.